10. Expand the theme in a write - up of about 20 lines.

(a) 'Rumours are spread by fools and accepted by greater fools'.

Ans: The above maxim shows the actual procedure of creating and spreading rumours in the society. Rumours mean false stories which are not realistic at all. Rumours create confusion among the people. However, they are baseless. Generally, fools mean selfish people spread rumours. They have some selfish purpose. With the passing days, those rumours are followed by greater fools. Greater fools mean stupid people who accept anything without thinking. 'Cat crossing our path brings bad luck' is a rumour but still in the age of science many people follow it. In the 90's the rumour was spread that the long-headed God Ganpati drank milk. It was spread in Mumbai, but all people in Maharashtra rushed to the nearest Ganpati temples with glasses of milk. So, it is right that rumours are spread by fools or followed or accepted by greater fools.

(b) 'Books are our real friends'

Ans : The above sentence shows the importance of books as well as importance of reading. Books are our real friends. Real friends are always with us. They always encourage us. They motivate us to do well in life. Whatever real friends do for us is also done by books. Books are the world of treasures. They are the source of knowledge and education. Knowledge is power means books make us powerful. They provide confidence and courage to speak. Books make our all-round development. They enrich our language skills like reading, writing and speaking. They play a vital role in the development of our personality. Books keep us away from unwanted habits. They give us lessons of morality. They help to increase our focus and accountability. Really books are our real friends.
