Son: Yes, father, I will act up to your advice.

Father: But I want to know your mind first. Our choice must be to your liking.

Son: I want to be a Computer Engineer if you agree.

Father: Yes, it is an excellent profession. By being a skilled computer engineer, you can do many things for the nation. But have you ever thought over the hard work, it will mean?

Son: Yes, father, I think no work is too hard for me in this profession.

Father: All these are true. But do not forget that this profession also needs much tolerance and sacrifice.

Son: You are right. I think nothing is impossible if I study regularly and sincerely.

Father: Excellent! I agree with you wholeheartedly. But I would advise you to study general science first before you join in an Engineering University.

Father: Oh, no, my boy! You need not worry about expenses. I will cheerfully pay all your expenses in this connection, as I know my money will be well spent.

Father: And you are so good to us, dear son. I fully do support your future plan.

Son: Thank you, father.
