Make Your Writing Interesting by Adding Adjectives:

The following story is simple and boring. There are no adjectives in it at all. Read the story and underline all the nouns. Then rewrite the story by adding at least one adjective to each noun and watch the story come alive.

One day I decided to go to my friend Lalita's house. I wore my dress and shoes. I picked up my umbrella because I saw clouds through the window. I started walking. Suddenly, it started raining. I open the umbrella quickly and started walking fast. Despite the umbrella, I got drenched. I reached Lalit's house and rang the doorbell. She opened the door. I put my umbrella outside the door. She gave me a towel to dry myself. Then we sat down on the carpet. I saw a puppy under the sofa. Lalita's brother came and took the puppy into his room. Just then, her mother got us some sandwiches and a milkshake.
