Village Life

Advantages:

Village life is the best place to get a relationship between nature and the earth. A village is a place in which we can see a natural area. The life of the people is simple. People co-operate each other in their difficulty. The village is an ideal place to live if you are looking for harmony with nature. People have everything for a minimum life requirement. Villagers are simple satisfying with their life needs, and they always stock with fresh fruit, vegetables, fish, water, and clean air.

It's simplicity, natural beauty, and peace that makes life in the countryside unique. Also, living in a particular jungle can be stressful and can put you at risk of depression.

Disadvantages:

The villagers long for the comforts and possibilities of living in the city. Educational benefits are often few and challenging to secure, and job opportunities are much smaller than in the city. Village life mostly becomes tedious and causes a lack of clarity and gloss, which puts them in an unfavourable situation next to the residents of the city. Ignorance, prejudices, and narrow are more characteristic for rural areas than for life in the city. The villagers are poor and superstitious. Equipment and teaching schools in rural areas are not satisfactory, so you cannot get a comprehensive education. Also, the villagers do not understand the importance of education. Many children do not understand the importance of education and commitment to agriculture. Residents of the village do not know how important the preservation of good health. Many villages do not have the necessary facilities, such as good roads, schools, and hospitals.

Suggest a suitable title.

While preparing to plant trees in a residential colony, highways or anywhere, one should consider three factors taking decision. What kind of (species) trees, where to plant and what kind of soil. He should consider the qualities of a tree such as pattern of branching and its height. If it is a school, you need shade-giving trees of moderate height so that children can play under them and not be hurt when they climb on to them.

In residential colonies, trees with thick branches, like eucalyptus or Ashoka should be chosen to control pollution and trap dust. Similarly, the nature of the soil too should be considered. If you are planting trees by the road side, it withstands the topical monsoon and provides shade in summer.

On highways the well-known choice would be the native trees tamarind or peepal. Being hardly, they do not need much care. Birds and animals interact more easily with native trees than the exotics. Villagers too consider such native trees to be sacred as the abode of gods.

"Do you ever get anywhere?" he asked with a mocking laugh.

"Yes," replied the Tortoise, "and I get there sooner than you think. I'll run you a race and prove it."

The Rabbit was much amused at the idea of running a race with the Tortoise, but for the fun of the thing he agreed. So, the Fox, who had consented to act as judge, marked the distance and started the runners off.

The Rabbit was soon far out of sight, and to make the Tortoise feel very deeply how ridiculous it was for him to try a race with a Hare, he lay down beside the course to take a nap until the Tortoise should catch up.

The Tortoise meanwhile kept going slowly but steadily, and, after a time, passed the place where the Rabbit was sleeping. But the Rabbit slept on very peacefully; and when at last he did wake up, the Tortoise was near the goal. The Rabbit now ran his swiftest, but could not overtake the Tortoise in time. slowly and steadily the tortoise won the race. The rabbit felt ashamed of his deeds.
